

Global reproductive health and rights:

Is ICPD enough?

Mindy Jane Roseman, JD, PhD

Harvard Law School
Human Rights Program

American Public Health Association

7 November 2007

Organization

- Introduction--Global Reproductive Rights and Health: the group and the book project
- ICPD and reproductive rights
- Organization of the book and key findings
- Getting to there: ICPD +15, +20.

Center for Population and Development Studies, Harvard School of Public Health, Group on Reproductive Health and Rights, Book Project

ICPD and Reproductive Rights

Table of Contents

- Volume Introduction
- Section I: Global Agendas and Population and Development Perspectives
- Global reproductive health and rights: Reflecting on ICPD by Mindy Jane Roseman and Laura Reichenbach
- 2. The global reproductive health and rights agenda: Opportunities and challenges for the future by Laura Reichenbach
- 3. The conundrum of population and reproductive health programs in the early twenty-first century by George Zeidenstein
- 4. Population, poverty reduction, and the Cairo agenda by David E. Bloom and David Canning
- 5. Mobilizing resources for reproductive health by Thomas W. Merrick
- 6. Measuring reproductive health: From contraceptive prevalence to human development indicators by Joan Kaufman
- Section II: Human Rights Realizations
- 7. Bearing human rights: Maternal health and the promise of ICPD by Mindy Jane Roseman
- 8. Advocacy strategies for young people's sexual and reproductive health: Using UN processes by Bonnie Shepard
- 9. Approaches to sexual and reproductive health and HIV policies and programs: Synergies and disconnects by Sofia Gruskin
- 10. Technology, reproductive health, and the Cairo consensus by Kelly Blanchard
-
- 11. The Cairo "compromise" on abortion and its consequences for making abortion safe and legal by Marge Berer
-
- Section III: Challenges to Institutionalizing Reproductive Health and Rights
- 12. Advocacy for sexuality and women's rights: continuities, discontinuities, and strategies since ICPD by Françoise Girard
- 13. Situating reproductive health within the Academy by Alaka Basu
- 14. The political limits of the UN in advancing reproductive health and rights by Heidi Larson and Michael R. Reich
- 15. Examining religion and reproductive health: constructive engagement for the future by Frances Kissling
- 16. Considering the future of ICPD: Concluding thoughts by Rebecca Firestone, Laura Reichenbach, and Mindy Jane Roseman

Section I: Global Agendas and Population and Development Perspectives

Section II: Human Rights Realizations

Section III: Challenges to Institutionalizing Reproductive Health and Rights

Getting to There: ICPD +15, +20

