

Politics and ethics of chronic disease remediation: A call for 'post-ideological' health policy

Erika Blacksher, PhD
Columbia University
RWJ Health & Society Scholar

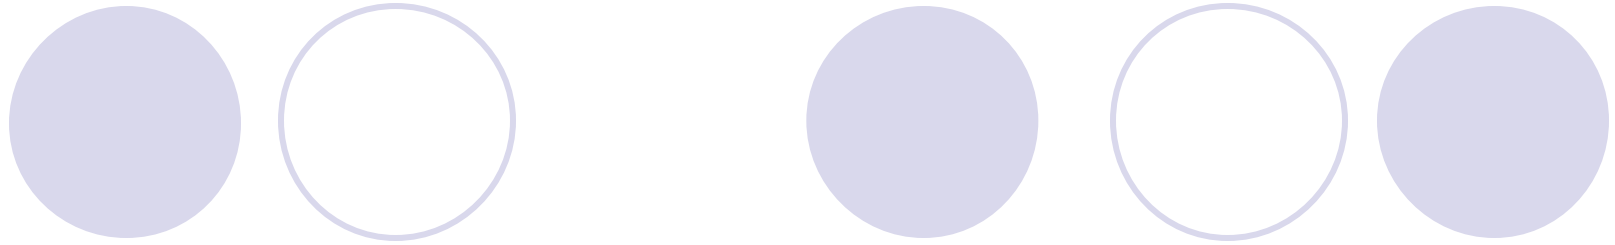

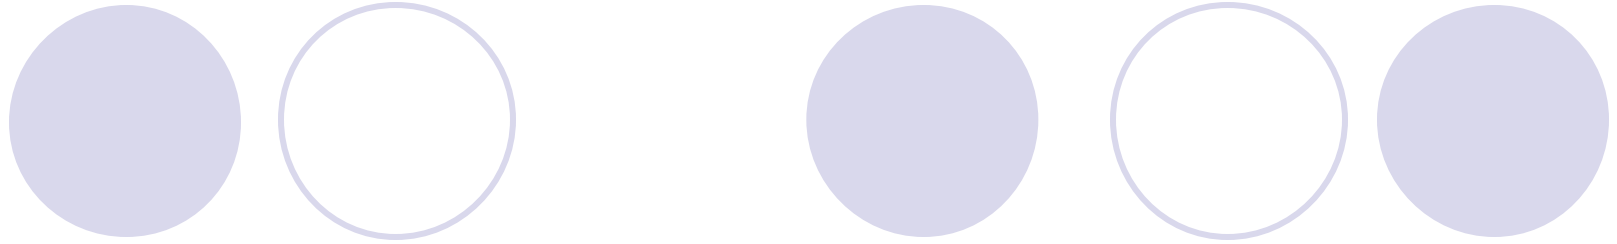

What role, if any, should personal responsibility play in health policy?

socio-political climate epidemiology of chronic disease ethical landscape

distributional and non-distributional tasks of social justice values central to public health tradition current initiatives

a 'development' approach to community health and health equity

Acknowledgements

This work is supported by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health & Society Scholars program and the Center for the Study of Social Inequalities in Health at Columbia University