

challenges prevent population-level scale up of early detection for breast cancer.

Adapt community-based approaches based on the DSN to promote early detection may work in Dar es Salaam, but capacity to treat invasive cancer at referral sites is inadequate, particularly, given that 80% of women with cancer present with advanced stage disease.

Increase the cadre of clinicians available to provide health services across the cancer continuum of care—from early detection to palliation.

Figure 1.

