

Quid Pro Quo: Tobacco Companies and the Black Press Phyra M. McCandless, JD, MPH; Valerie B. Yerger, ND, MA; Ruth E. Malone, PhD, RN, FAAN Center for Tobacco Control Research and Education and Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences University of California, San Francisco

Introduction:

 Tobacco is the leading cause of health disparities affecting African Americans

 African American newspapers play important roles in conveying information to the African American community

 National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) is the trade association of the Black press (representing 200+ newspapers)

• Compared to the general population, African American communities are disproportionately targeted with tobacco advertisements, products, philanthropy

Study Purpose

Explore relationship between the tobacco industry and NNPA

Methods: Archival case study

Data Sources

 Internal tobacco industry documents in Legacy Tobacco Documents Library (http://legacy.library.ucsf.edu/)

 Archived documents of NNPA publishers at the Howard University Moorland-Spingarn Research Center

Analysis

- Evaluated documents for relevance
- Organized materials thematically
- Prepared descriptive case study

- Results:
- Longstanding relationship between NNPA and tobacco companies
 - Advertisements
 - Awards Editorials
 - Op-Eds
 - •Scholarships
 - Sponsorships
 - Speeches

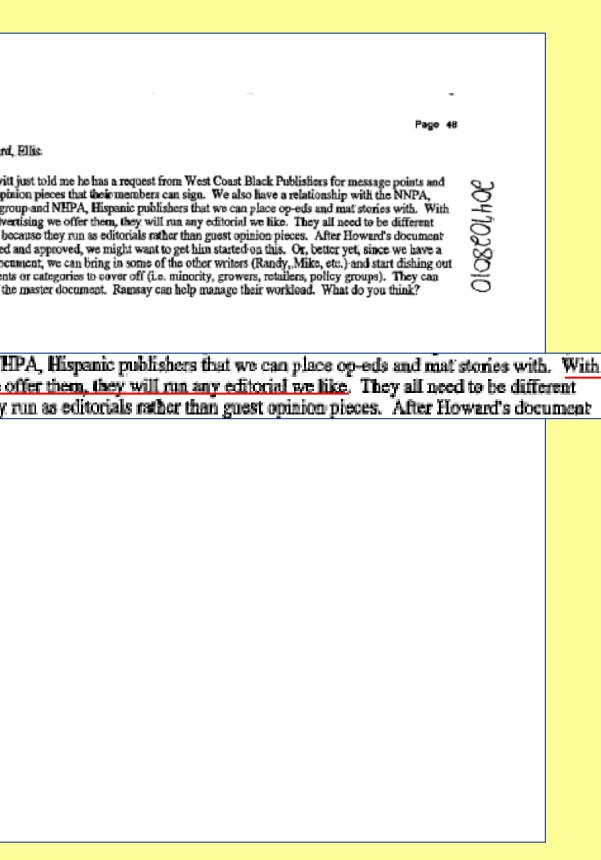

Expectations of Relationship Quid Pro Quo: Tobacco Industry Expectations

- Expectation of NNPA support
- Tobacco Institute—lobbying arm of tobacco industry--planned to "place a minimum of two stories annually pointing out heavy burden placed on middle and lower income smokers by cigarette taxes" in NNPA papers • "With all the advertising we offer them, they will run any editorial we like." (Philip Morris, 1995)

To: Woodward, B Josh Slavitt ji canned opinic national grou all the advert however beca is finalized ar master docum
Josh Slavitt ji canned opinio national grou all the advert however beca is finalized an Josh Slavitt ji canned opinio national grou all the advert however beca is finalized an Josh Slavitt ji canned opinio national grou all the advert however beca is finalized an Josh Slavitt ji canned opinio national grou all the advert however beca is finalized an Josh Slavitt ji canned opinio national grou all the advert however beca is finalized an Josh Slavitt ji canned opinio national grou all the advert however beca is finalized an canned opinic national grou all the advect however beca is finalized ar all the advert however beca is finalized ar is finalized as DEASLET COCUR
assignments work off the national group and NHP all the advertising we of however because they m
Philip Morri

for High Priority Issues . TID: ydc81e00

is, 1995 Email. TID: lvf77d00

NNPA Expectations and Developing Tensions

 Documentary evidence of NNPA support for the tobacco industry and expectation of industry support in return Counter-pressure within African American communities emerged (e.g., Health and Human Services Secretary Dr. Louis Sullivan calling for banning cigarette advertising in Black newspapers), straining NNPA-tobacco industry relationship

 Tobacco industry recognized "ugl[iness]" and threats to its legitimacy were growing

Addressing Tensions

 Industry-funded scholarships, advertising, sponsorships, and speaking engagements sustained NNPA connections well into 1990s

• RJ Reynolds included NNPA leaders (e.g., former NNPA) presidents Bogle and Leavell) in discussions about how to counteract community tensions

 Tobacco industry friendship and advertising acknowledged as influences

Conclusions:

 Tobacco industry expected editorial support for tobacco industry positions in return for advertising, sponsorships, scholarships, and other types of contributions

 Tobacco companies viewed willingness to support Black press as buying loyalty and securing favor: more likely quid pro quo-plus Relationship may have contributed to dissemination to Black community of inaccurate/incomplete messages about tobacco

• Quid pro quo-plus between tobacco companies and Black press violated journalistic standards to "deny favored treatment to advertisers and special interests"

• "Quid pro quo" legacy of inequitable trade likely harmed African American communities

Tobacco industry ad budgets fluctuated for NNPA papers