

Partnering for Health: The Benefits of Collaboration in an Effort to Reduce Health Inequities.

Presenter bios

Katherine Brown, MPH was born in Houston, Texas and raised in Oakland California. She has received her undergraduate degree from UC Berkeley, majoring in Interdisciplinary Studies Field Major, with an emphasis on Health and Illnesses in Industrialized Societies. She went onto to receive a Masters in Public Health from San Francisco State University in 2006. Katherine has worked for the City of Berkeley Public Health Division since 2000, and is currently the program manager for their Hypertension, Nutrition, Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention programs, and co-coordinator for the Heart 2 Heart (a community based project, focused on reducing cardiovascular health inequities in South Berkeley). Katherine can be reached at 510-981-5289 or kbrown@cityofberkeley.info.

Ginalyn Barrina Jugarap Hansson was born in General Santos City, Philippines and raised in Alameda California. She received her undergraduate degree at California State University East Bay majoring in Psychology. Ginalyn has been with LifeLong Medical Care since 2010 first serving as the School Based AmeriCorps Member and transitioned into a Patient Advocate. Currently she is the Heart 2 Heart Program co-coordinator focusing on reducing health inequalities within South Berkeley, primarily in cardiovascular disease. Gin can be reached at 510-981-4140 or GHansson@lifelongmedical.org.

